Digital Distinction adds SONOS to the range.

Digital Distinction is proud to announce that we now stock the latest in multi-zone integration products for your home.

The SONOS Zone Players, distributed in Australia by Playback Systems provide home owners with truly remarkable multi-zone audio capabilities that integrate incredibly well into the digital integration market that is the core business of Digital Distinction.

Director of Digital Distinction, Ashley West, says that the product has unlimited potential for the home market “as soon as I saw this product and how neatly it integrated with the digital music stored on the PC, I knew home owners would want to be able to experience it in their own homes, everyday”.

The multi-zone functionality of the system extends Digital Distinctions digital products to the next level by integrating systems through-out the house. “Being able to select the music you want, the zone you want to play it in and control the volume independently from either a wireless hand-held keypad or the Home Theatre PC makes this a unique product on the market today” commented Ashley. “The extent that the manufacturers have gone to, to ensure quality amplifiers and components in the system is also a very positive tick for the brand”.

The controller is also an impressive device that home owners are going to love to use. The controller, which provides features and ergonomics not dissimilar to an iPod will fit into any modern home.
